E-FLASH UPDATE

Attention elementary families: In an effort to move forward with our school-wide plan to maintain educational continuity during this different season, student work has been prepared and placed on all PreK-5 classroom desks. At your nearest convenience, please stop by the main office, and someone will accompany you to the elementary building to get these instructional materials for your child(ren).

Attention secondary families: Similarly, all middle and high school teachers are developing a wide range of established distance learning options for their class(es) - utilizing available platforms geared toward online learning to maintain educational continuity and decrease the chance of academic regression during this time of school closure. I have been in regular communication with teachers regarding approaches, options, programs, and support that is available to everyone.

As I have established with teachers at both buildings, this time presents us with great opportunities to keep our students focused on learning and moving forward together - regardless of time that may or may not need to be made-up in the long run. Family needs come first, and if you need to alter your home approach and/or receive any type of assistance during this home education period, please do not hesitate to talk to our teachers, myself, and/or Mr. Zook, and we will work with you to best meet the needs of your child(ren) and home situation.

Office staff will be in the main office to provide additional support and guidance during these two weeks, so please do not hesitate to stop by or call during regular hours!

Blessings,

Nicholas J. Wilson
